THIS WEEK

AROUND THE UNION

Wisconsin public campus ministry adjusts; reaps windfall

During the past school year, the COVID-19 pandemic was an opportunity for the Adventist Christian Fellowship team to stop and reevaluate mission on the campus of University of Wisconsin–Stevens Point.

"I believe God used this unprecedented year to open our eyes and to turn what seemed like an evil situation into good, to reveal to us how to truly start a gospel multiplying movement on campus; impacting people personally," says ACF Advisor/Coordinator, Joshua Guerrero.

Commentary: The pandemic and freedom of conscience

So maybe you have seen the viral video, a doctor regaling an Indiana school board with his expert insights into the Covid virus, and the shortcomings of the vaccines, and why his scientific insights into the matter are vastly superior to the CDC, NIH, and the Indiana Board of Health who, we are told, care nothing about real science.
