Nearly 3,000 Gather in Phoenix for Youth Convention

Nearly 3,000 Adventist youth have gathered in Phoenix, Ariz. for the 20th annual Generation. Youth. Christ. (GYC) convention in Phoenix, Ariz. The annual convention seeks to revive a movement that GYC describes as “young people who yearn to demonstrate Nehemiah’s leadership, Daniel’s integrity, Mary’s humility, Paul’s passion for evangelism, and Christ’s love for God and humanity.”

GYC Founders and President Reflect on 20th Anniversary

Twenty years. It's a milestone that founders say proves the "experiment" was a success. That experiment is Generation. Youth. Christ. (known by its moniker "GYC"), the youth conference turned revival movement. It was formed by a group of college students who were frustrated with how the church related to its youth. And, they persevered despite the odds and formidable opposition.

ONE VOICE Forever Cheerleaders

"Your test results show that you are pregnant." Hearing those words, as I sat in my doctor's office, my heart sank. This couldn't be true. I'm only 18 years old, a senior in high school, and had dreams of going away to college like every other senior anticipates.
